

RED CROSS RALLY AT LANGHORNE NEXT THURSDAY

Speakers to Be Henry Baker and Charles W. Crist

INCLUDES WHOLE CO.

Volunteer Workers Invited and Urged to Attend the Session

A Roll Call rally for the Red Cross volunteers of Bucks county will take place on Thursday afternoon, October 23rd, at 2 o'clock, in the Community Memorial House at Langhorne. The speakers will be Henry Baker, former National Director for Red Cross Disaster Relief, and Charles W. Crist, manager of the membership department of the Southeastern Pennsylvania Chapter.

Members of the Langhorne Branch will serve in the capacity of hostesses to the women visitors from other sections of the county and will serve tea at the conclusion of the meeting.

Mr. Baker comes to the Bucks County Red Cross meeting with an urgent plea from the American Red Cross in Washington.

During the last eight years the National Organization has been compelled to spend an average of $870,000 in excess of its income every year. This deficit has come out of the reserve which was left when the World War ended. The reserve now has been reduced to the danger point.

One million members in addition to those already enrolled are needed now to support the Red Cross and to meet the National budget.

The crisis which the National Red Cross faces at present must be met by the 3,500 chapters throughout the country. The Southeastern Pennsylvania Chapter which includes the counties of Philadelphia, Bucks, Chester, Delaware and Montgomery, will open the 14th Annual Roll Call on November 11th, Armistice Day, with thousands of volunteers pledged to the task of asking all citizens to join the Red Cross or rejoin.

The plan of work for these volunteers will be outlined by Mr. Crist. He will stress the point that true salesmanship of the Red Cross to any community can be achieved only when the Red Cross workers themselves understand fully the cause they represent and the emergency which the organization faces.

"Legs" Diamond Said To Be Improving Today

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—(INS)—Defying the laws of medical science just as he long defied the laws of the land, Jack ("Legs") Diamond not only was alive today, but reported improving. The racketeer who was shot by gunmen in the Monticello Hotel, Sunday, spent a comfortable night in Poly-clinic Hospital and this morning chatted freely between sips of milk.

The attending doctors said they were greatly encouraged by the improvement of Diamond and said unless pneumonia developed Diamond had a good chance to recover.

While the unexpected retreat from death's door was made by Diamond, investigation of his shooting promised to develop into another Arnold Rothstein case. One by one various clues of the police were investigated and shattered and detectives sent scouting on new theories.

With Diamond's improvement it was expected he would again be questioned by police in a final effort to get him to reveal his attackers. Police said they believed the racketeer knew perfectly well who shot him and why.

The latest person sought for questioning was Maxie Gordon, alias Irving Wexler, said by police to be a leader in New York's bootleg world and a racketeer of parts. He is the man Miss Marion Roberts, chorus-girl friend of Diamond, who was in an adjoining room when he was shot, said he had a conference with Diamond shortly before the shooting. She said he was called "Max" and "Maxie" but police declared Maxie Gordon was the man she referred to.

Diamond's condition was so improved last night that he asked hospital attendants to open windows of his room so he could hear the cheers as a card of boxing events was run off in nearby Madison Square Garden.

Moreland, Fred Jewett, A. Falk, Jack Slomlin, W. Hill, Sam Elsemann, Herman Weiben, Jean Tongsigna, all of Bristol, and Miss Dorothy Wright, of Trenton.

HULMEVILLE HUNTER AND GUIDE TRAPPED ALL NIGHT ON MOUNTAIN, WITH NO TENT, FOOD OR SLEEPING BAG; LOCATE CAMP IN THE MORNING

Steep Climb is Necessitated to Shoot Mountain Goat After Five of the Animals Are Sighted; Fleecy Trophy is Bagged Far From Camp

The account of a hunting trip which he and two friends took to Alberta is continued here by Cyrus E. Smith, Hulmeville:

By Cyrus E. Smith

It's had enough to be lost in the wood all night, but still worse to be trapped all night on the mountains when it's raining. Then, too, as we had gone steadily on, trying to catch up to the others, we crossed and re-crossed a mountain stream, where the horses slipped and stumbled over the slippery rock in the bed of the river. Then on we went through dense growths, where at times the horses jammed our legs up against a tree trunk, and tree limbs banged us in the face and pulled off caps or glasses, and tore our clothes. Then, when we left all this, feeling greatly relieved, Johnnie started to lead up the side of the mountain. I couldn't see my horse's ears, but knew from the angle of the mount that we were going up and up, and in winding around some points the trail was only a foot wide, with a precipice right beside it. You just have to trust to your mount seeing in either dark or rain. Another bad part was that after going up and up, the air was getting keener and colder. Then Johnnie would make up his mind to come down, and although seeing nothing, I knew by the wiggling and zig-zagging of the horse, and the trouble I had to keep from slipping off the saddle front onto the horse's neck, that we were descending. On we came over the loose, sliding shale, and then after a while Johnnie stopped short, and said, "Ugh, canyon." Right short we turned back. These were the things we put up with from eight until 11 p. m., and the three hours seemed like a century. You wouldn't think of home, and wonder just why one wanted to leave it!

At times Johnnie would leave me and the horses to find his way. I think he had been far off the trail the most of the time, and I had asked him several times to stop and build a fire, rather than put up with the uncertain, dangerous onward jaunt to we knew not where. Cliffs and crags were everywhere, and we didn't know just when we might slide down the mountain or over a cliff, or if the horses would stumble and fall before you could get out from under.

At last Johnnie stopped and said: "Make fire. Stay all night. No more fire trail." The place selected was in a little glade on the side of the mountain, next to a good-sized fir tree. The ground was moss-covered, soggy and wet. Johnnie unpacked the moose, took off the saddles, and tethered the horses close by. He built a fire of boughs, and after he had the fire going, he lay down in his wet clothes in a little hollow filled with water, between the fire and the fir tree. There he stayed with his back to the fire all night, never once moving, not even when the live coals from the fire rolled down against his back; I brushed them away as there was nothing for me to do all night, as I couldn't lay down on the wet ground like the Indian, and my rain suit was all tattered and torn by the tree limbs. So I had to gather wood and keep up the fire, and spent the night listening to the crackling of the camp fire, and the dropping of rain off the limbs of the trees which I leaned against for protection. The roaring of the mountain stream could be heard below, and now and then the howl of the coyotes in the distance, or the cry of a mountain lion. It was a long, dreary night, with no tent, no food, no sleeping bag.

Six o'clock arrived at last, and I woke Johnnie and asked him if it were light enough to see the trail. He went down the mountain and soon returned saying the outfit was ahead, that it had gone on the previous night as he saw the tracks. He packed the moose and led the way. After about an hour's travel we came upon the outfit, camped on a little knoll in among some firs along the Hard Scramble River. The group was anxious and glad to see us. They also had had a hard go through the trees in the dark before they made camp. One cheering feature when we rode into camp that

DR. HARVEY KRATZ DIES AT AGE OF 92

One of the Oldest Physicians
In Bucks County, It Is Believed

ILL FOR A LONG TIME

DOYLESTOWN, Oct. 16.—Dr. Harvey Kratz, a prominent resident of Bucks county, particularly in the Hilltown and New Britain sections, and one of the oldest physicians in the county, died at the home of his son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. Carmon Ross, this borough, following a lengthy illness.

Dr. Kratz was born in Plumstead township, Sept. 2, 1838, and was a son of Jacob S. and Elizabeth (Fretz) Kratz, natives of this county. The Kratz family came from Switzerland and located in this county in the latter part of the 17th century.

Dr. Kratz was reared on the farm until he was 16 years of age and then attended the high school at Collegeville. Afterward he was a student for several terms at Carversville.

In 1860 he took up the study of medicine under Dr. I. S. Moyer. In the fall of the same year he attended lectures at the University of Pennsylvania and graduated in 1862. After that he began the practice of medicine at Mount Pleasant, Hilltown township, and remained there until 1884, when he moved to New Britain. There he practiced medicine for many years.

Dr. Kratz, who was of Mennonite parentage, had been residing with Dr. and Mrs. Ross for the past three years, previous to which time he resided in New Britain. Dr. Kratz practiced medicine until he reached the age of 78 years, at which time he suffered a severe attack of illness and since that time he has been living retired.

He was for years a director of the Doylestown National Bank and president of the Hilltown Turpentine Company and of the Self Defense Horse Company. He was a member of the American Medical Society, the Pennsylvania Medical Society and the Bucks County Medical Society, being secretary of the latter organization many years ago.

In March, 1864, he married Sarah, daughter of Francis Rinker, and they had eleven children. Children surviving him are: Mrs. Carmon Ross, of this place; Mrs. William C. Trude, Ashton, Idaho; Miss Hannah R. Kratz and Mrs. Theodore Jones, both of Los Angeles, Calif.; Mrs. L. R. Stricker, Asheville, N. C.; Mrs. William S. Parry, Riverton, N. J.; Mrs. E. B. Darlington, Burley, Idaho; Mrs. Justus M. Matthews, Seattle, Wash., and Charles S. Kratz, Bethlehem.

Driver of Truck Escapes; Cab of Machine Damaged

TULLYTOWN, Oct. 16.—A motor truck of the Pyramid Trucking Company, Philadelphia, rammed into another truck parked on the highway here early today.

The accident occurred near the upper end of the borough. The Pyramid truck crashed into the rear of a truck which was parked along the side of the road. The driver's cab was smashed and the chassis and motor considerably damaged.

The driver, Samuel Bentley, Philadelphia, was taken aboard another truck to a Trenton hospital from which he was discharged after being given first aid. He was cut by broken glass.

Little Mary Dugan Is Hostess to Her Friends

Little Mary Dugan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Dugan, of Wood street, was hostess to a few of her friends in honor of her eighth birthday anniversary.

The children had a good time playing different games and prizes were given. For pinning the tail on the donkey, Esther Tomlinson won the prize; in the drawing game, Gertrude Arcolesse received a prize, and Helen Burke won the guessing contest.

Refreshments were served in the dining room which was attractively decorated with pink and yellow crepe paper. Bouquets of cut flowers and a large birthday cake with candles, were on the table, besides a lot of good things to eat. Each child received as a favor a little yellow basket filled with candy and nuts.

Those present were: Esther Tomlinson, Gertrude Arcolesse, Jean Dugan, Helen Burke, Alba Curran and Mary Dugan and John Burke.

Mary received many nice birthday gifts.

Road repairs, the need of an adequate water supply for the community, the report of the Red Cross community nurse and the question of traffic signs were among the items considered at a meeting of the Southampton Chamber of Commerce in the ladies' auxiliary room of the Southampton Fire Company.

Following the routine business in connection with the opening of the meeting, the matter of a water supply for the community was again taken up. This matter came before the meetings of the organizations on various occasions last year.

Mrs. Wallace G. Murfit, of Newtown, was elected president of the Newtown Home School Association at the business meeting of that organization.

Other officers elected were as follows: Vice-president, A. J. Cote; secretary, Miss Frances Merrick; treasurer, William S. Tomlinson. All of the officers were unanimously elected after the names had been submitted by the nominating committee which was headed by Mrs. Arthur W. Roberts.

The treasurer reported that the $500 pledged to the gymnasium fund had been paid in full and that a balance of $117 remains. William T. Wright and Stanley Watson were appointed auditors.

Rally day was observed in the Chalfont M. E. Sunday school with a record breaking attendance. A splendid program was given by the various classes of the school. Harvest home was observed in the church with an appropriate message by the pastor. The room was decorated with autumn leaves, wild flowers, a shock of corn and pumpkins. Donations of canned fruits, jellies, vegetables and groceries were brought. Two barrels were shipped to the M. E. Hospital, Philadelphia.

The Wide Awake girls' class of the M. E. Sunday school held the monthly meeting at the home of Miss Bernice Sands on Friday evening, October 10. During the business meeting officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: President, Miss Margaret Anderson; vice-president, Miss Bernice Sands; secretary, Miss Catharine Jacoby; treasurer, Miss Mary Thomas.

While the Act of April 23, 1903, provided that prothonotaries maintain lists of automobiles operated in Pennsylvania counties, more than one-third of these counties reported recently to State Motor Vehicle Commissioner Benjamin G. Eynon that they could find no record of such registration.

From all that Commissioner Eynon can discover, however, fewer than 800 "benzene buggies" were registered in Pennsylvania in 1903.

The first act regulating Pennsylvania automobiles required that prothonotaries register those owned in each county, the fee being $2, and that a license fee of $3 be levied against each vehicle. Fees were payable to the city or county treasurer.

Officials of Allegheny and Philadelphia counties report to Eynon that they can find no registration record in those counties for the years 1903, 1904 or 1905. Thirty other counties made similar reports.

Bucks county had 15 cars registered in 1903.

ARMY OFFICER TAKES BOMBER TO DAYTON, O.

Captain Lowell Smith Pleased
With Performance of First
Plane of Contract

KEYSTONE TO BUILD 73

Captain Lowell Smith, U. S. Army, took off from the Keystone Aircraft field here, today at noon, in the first of 73 bombers contracted for by the army with the Keystone Corporation. His destination is the army engineering centre at Dayton, Ohio.

The air-craft, one of the type known in the army as "B-3A", is a bi-plane with a wing-spread of 75 feet. It is equipped with two Pratt & Whitney motors of 525 h. p. each. High speed maintained by the machine is 150 miles per hour, the cruising speed averaging 93 miles.

The entire group of planes of this type is expected to be completed by next summer. It is planned to have some of the bombers equipped with Cyclone motors of 650 horse power.

The fuselage of the bombers is finished in the olive drab, with wings and tail in a bright yellow. The rudders are in the national colors, red, white and blue.

A military load of five passengers can be comfortably accommodated in the machines, and each ship is so equipped that it can handle 2500 pounds of bombs.

Captain Smith participated in a test flight of the bomber on Sunday, and expressed complete satisfaction over its splendid performance.

The other 72 planes contracted for will be taken to various army bases.

AUTO HITS TROLLEY

Joseph Mauro gained some scratches last night when at about 8.30 the automobile he was driving struck a trolley car in Tullytown. The trolley had been halted, and the pole was being changed at the time, it is said. The glare from the wet thoroughfare is partially blamed for the accident. The Mauro car was considerably damaged.

Boys Give Their Names as William Taber and Eugene Secora —Fire Two Shots at Hold-up Victim But Both Bullets Go Wild — Posse Hunts All Night for the Bandits

DOYLESTOWN, Oct. 16.—Two youthful Philadelphians surrendered to an armed posse of citizens, State and County policemen on the Lackawanna Trail, between Pipersville and Ottsville, today, after an all-night chase, and confessed, the police said, to trying to hold up a wealthy butcher near Ottsville.

The boys gave their names as William Taber, 18, and Eugene Secora, 16, both of Philadelphia. Taber admitted having been arrested three times and Secora six times by Philadelphia police; both are said to be on probation.

BENSALEM JUNIORS ARE PLANNING THREE PLAYS

"Bensalemite" Will Make Its First Appearance for The Season Soon

ATHLETIC ACTIVITIES

BENSALEM TOWNSHIP HIGH SCHOOL, Cornwells Heights, Oct. 16—

The junior class at Bensalem High is working on three one-act plays. The plays are being coached by Jane Kohler of the English department. The names of these plays are: "The Exchange," "Dear Departed" and "Station YYY." The last of these plays is strictly modern as can be seen by the title which pertains to radio. These plays will be presented on the evening of November 5th in the spacious high school auditorium. The proceeds of the productions will go toward the building up of the junior treasury.

The "Bensalemite," a news edition printed under the supervision of the faculty and student body of Bensalem Township High School will make its first appearance of the current year on Monday, October 20th. The paper has as its editor-in-chief, Axel Klenzorg, of the class of 1931.

The girls of B. T. H. S. are working on a new game in the athletic field of the school. It is called end ball. On Thursday, October 16th, a tournament will be held between the four classes of the school to determine the best of the seniors, juniors, sophomores and freshmen. After this tournament, real honest-to-goodness basketball practice will begin in preparation for the hard schedule Bensalem girls usually follow.

The initiation of football at Bensalem did not turn out with score in favor of the home boys, but the team is young in experience. The opponents were the boys from Morrisville and the score was: Morrisville, 25; Bensalem, 0. The game was one-sided as can readily be seen. However, the local fellows showed lots of stuff, although they were beaten.

The second game of the season was a little different in character. The home towners held the Willow Grove eleven to a 0-0 tie and made it seem as if Bensalem will be a tough nut to crack in future games. Willow Grove is a thoroughly seasoned outfit and Bensalem Township should be proud that the high school team was able to hold them down in such a decided fashion.

Bensalem has adopted a new plan this year. Instead of a separate athletic association for girls and one for boys, they have been combined into one, and called the Bensalem High School Athletic Association. At present the association is making a grand drive for members. The membership fee is nominal and quite a few members have already joined.

The boys' basketball schedule is being arranged, and many interesting games will be played both at home and away this season. To give an idea of the opponents of the high school the following teams are named: Morrisville, Bristol, Langhorne, Newtown.

Miss Sargeant, a well known member of the faculty, is planning to coach the girls' archery team at Bensalem. This is another new sport at the high school and its popularity cannot be determined until it gets under way.

On Saturday Miss Wells, of the Bensalem faculty, took the girls of the junior high school on a hike to Wissahickon Park.

MISSIONARY MEETING

The Women's Home Missionary Society will meet in the Bristol Methodist Church parlor this evening at eight o'clock. All members are asked to take their donations for the Needlework Circle of the Deaconess Home. The public is asked to keep in mind the rummage sale which will take place on Friday and Saturday of this week at the church.

The boys were identified by Cleveland Overpeck, 47 year old butcher, as the youths who attempted to hold him up at his home early last evening. Taber, according to Overpeck's story, pointed a .32 calibre pistol at him and told him to hand over his money. Instead of complying, Overpeck said he resisted and in the scuffle, Taber fired twice; the bullets going wild.

Overpeck managed to wrest the pistol from the boys and emptied the remaining four cartridges at them as they fled to a nearby woods.

State police were notified and a search immediately instituted, ending with the capture of the alleged bandits this morning.

The boys told officials they spent the night in a corn shock, some distance from the Overpeck home and were making their way towards Philadelphia when seized on the Lackawanna Trail today, about five miles from the scene of the attempted hold-up.

Taber and Secora were placed in the Bucks County Jail here and will be given a hearing tonight.

Transportation Will Be Provided to Dist. Meeting

The special attention of Camp No. 789, P. O. S. of A., is called to the regular monthly meeting of the Philadelphia Bucks District to be held at Camp No. 363, Olney, Philadelphia, October 17.

At this meeting the nomination and election of a district secretary and district treasurer will take place. Also, the state president and state secretary will be present.

Transportation will be provided for all members wishing to attend. Members will meet at Trades Hall at 7.30 to proceed to Olney. Since this is a most important meeting, it is hoped that the local camp will be well represented.

John F. Wear Weds Miss Alida S. Ellis

Miss Alida S. Ellis and Mr. John F. Wear were married last evening in St. Barbara's Episcopal Church, 64th and Haverford avenue, Philadelphia. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Henry Stuart Paynter at 6.30 o'clock.

The bride was attired in a brown pan velvet suit with hat and slippers to match. The couple was attended by Mr. and Mrs. John Woolson, of Philadelphia.

Mrs. Wear for the past twelve years was employed as a ticket clerk at the Pennsylvania Railroad station, here, resigning her position, October 1st.

The groom is one of Bristol's successful business men and conducts the Unity grocery store at Bath and Buckley streets.

Acts As Hostess To Sunday School Class

Tuesday evening Miss Mildred Randall, of McKinley street, was hostess to Class No. 10 of the First Baptist Sunday School.

After the business session, games were played and refreshments served.

ALL CAN HELP

Business is after all a reciprocal matter. Stores are not alone for the merchants who own them nor are they only for the people who trade with them. Without the other the merchant cannot sell and the customer cannot buy. And reasoning in the negative, if the merchant does not satisfy the customer the customer will trade elsewhere, and if the customer trades elsewhere the merchant is deprived of the opportunity of striving to satisfy the customer.

By trading at home with the home town merchants the people of Bristol become the architects of their own business places. They create the demand and the home town merchant, assured of the demand, does not fail in meeting it. It is always more convenient to trade at home, and assured of your trade the home town merchants will find it quite convenient to meet every merchandise wish.

Every citizen of Bristol is interested in the growth and improvement of the community, but many of those who trade out-of-town do not realize that community improvements begin with the improvement of its business. The business of a town or city is its life-blood.

If it must be done in a spirit of selfishness, don't buy at home to help the merchant but to help the home community and yourself. Thrust your business upon the local merchants and force them to prosper, that they, prospering, will make the community prosper and bring more prospering merchants and buyers into town to increase competition and through competition reduce prices, and increase quality and stocks to choose from.

UNDERCONSTRUCTION

Since the war every business lull, every increase in unemployment, has been attributed to overproduction. It has become popular to diagnose every economic maladjustment as overproduction. Manufacturers, farmers and workers are being told that they are producing too much. In recent years world production of raw materials and foodstuffs has increased more than twice as fast as the population.

There seems to be a surplus of most worldly goods, but in the final analysis it is an inaccuracy to say that the world is producing more than it needs. The fact is that it isn't consuming as much as it should. Consumption should be increased, rather than production diminished.

Today the real economic problem of the United States is to increase the purchasing power of the consumer. Factories and farms are producing more than the people can buy, not more than they can consume. High though our standard of living is and many though the luxuries the masses enjoy none among us is surfeited. The commonest phrase is, "I would buy if I had the money."

Is wage-cutting, then, the solution of today's economic riddle? On the contrary, it is the irritant that should be avoided.

Things even up. American prisons are harder to get into but easier to get out of.

The Handsome Man
By Margaret Turnbull

W. N. U. SERVICE

"I couldn't catch him."
"Who?"
"The man who was listening at the window."
"You're crazy!"
"I chased him along the terrace and down to the water's edge and then—" "Well?"
"Then I lost him."
"Why?"
"Because a girl got between us. I had to avoid knocking her down. The fellow got away."
"Who was the girl?"
"Rather not tell, sir."
"Then you think she knew something?"
"I could not say."

Robert MacBeth gazed at him puzzled. "What would he want under my window?"

"Again I don't know, sir. But there are a lot of your men here tonight. They—I mean the gang after your payroll—may have thought you would discuss some of your plans. Some one was there—and he was listening."

Robert MacBeth leaned back to study the facts again. While he did so the band played a riotous fox trot. "If you're worried about the payroll," MacBeth, who had been smoking and thinking, suddenly said aloud, "the spy went empty away. Nothing said to anyone tonight about our plans."

"Good! Then we'll sleep on it. I have a scheme which I would like to tell you about tomorrow."

A voice from the door made them look up. "Tired, Dad?" Roberta asked. She glanced quickly at the two men. "Has Sir George been scaring you with his imaginary men-behind-window-curtains?"

"Has Sir George Been Scaring You With His Imaginary Men-Behind-Window-Curtains?"

hind-window-curtains? He's so determined to find us infested with wild men shooting pistols that he sees bandits everywhere. Better send him to Mexico, Father, and let his dreams come true."

"Who told you about it?" MacBeth looked from one to the other.

"Oh, Sir George, of course," Roberta laughed. "I met him when he was hot on his wild goose chase."

MacBeth stared. "Did you? He didn't tell me that. What were you doing when you stopped him?"

"Nothing," said Roberta, and bit her lip. What a fool she was! Sir George would be certain to fasten all his silly suspicions upon Jack! How easy it would have been to have said she was looking at the water or waiting for her dance partner.

But her father had her answer now and was studying it over. She was sure that he was not satisfied, though he said in a level voice to both of them, "Well, tomorrow or today, rather, will tell more than we know now. Good-morning, children. Here comes August."

The secretary walked toward the dining room door, and after a moment Roberta joined him. She did not speak until Sir George moved toward the stairway.

"Decent of you not to tell. But you see it wasn't necessary."

"I don't know," he answered slowly. "I am sorry you spoke."

"Why?" she challenged him.

He shook his head. "Just have an idea that it is the last straw—to your father. I don't think he will sleep tonight."

"How about you?"

"Oh, I won't sleep, either. I'm going up to get a club, or, as it's America, maybe a revolver, and watch his door."

Roberta laughed. "How melodramatic and how unreal! Look out on this soft countryside, still and quiet. What could happen between now and daylight?"

she could only get there and tell Jack to go away before Sir George came out again on the terrace!

Jack, looking his picturesque best in the moonlight on the tiny beach, was not so easy to send away. He had something to find out before he went, and something to tell the girl which would make his own position stronger.

It took him some moments and much tact to get the information. When he knew at last that tomorrow MacBeth had planned to send his secretary to the bank, he reluctantly released the nervous girl after a burst of furious jealousy, which terrified Roberta. Vehemently he had told her that it was because of her father's other guest—the cursed Englishman—that he had refused to come to the dance tonight. To meet Sir George was to denounce him publicly as a scoundrel. Then had followed a long bitter tale of Sir George's meeting with, conquest and destruction of a certain Senorita Mercedes.

What Roberta finally gathered, was that Sir George had met this Senorita Mercedes on the steamer, bound for New York, had heartlessly singled her out and as heartlessly thrown her over when he found how little money she had. The tale was cunningly told. It made Sir George seem cheap indeed, yet somehow the story also cheapened the story teller.

Roberta was glad when Jack Navarro finally paddled noiselessly away. She was inwardly raging at him, at Sir George, at the whole world, and she was half-sick with lack of sleep, fatigue and the fear that Sir George might find her there.

The gods were kind to her. She discovered that her father and his secretary were on the other side of the terrace. Gullitly, and vowing she would never do this again for Jack or any other man, Roberta crept upstairs.

"What's wrong with you, lad?" MacBeth asked sharply. "The last thing you said had no sense."

"I beg pardon," His secretary turned from the window. "I forgot for a moment, because," he hesitated, "because I am trying to put a scheme into words that will make you see how feasible it is."

"Well, let me have it and I'll sort out the wheat from the chaff."

The secretary looked at his chief with a cool eye. "It's almost all wheat." He drew a long breath and sat down beside MacBeth's chair. "The men you have reason to fear are after the payroll will be looking for two things: First, that the cash will travel from New York and pass through long stretches of lonely country in Jersey, before it crosses the river here."

MacBeth nodded.

"Or second, they will have gotten wind, through some source, of the fact that you have an account at the local bank, and although it may be given out that it's merely a household account, they will have their suspicions. If so, they will be looking for a car coming from the bank in the village to the construction camp."

Again MacBeth nodded. "Well," he said, "Sense so far. What's your plan?"

"Send an armored car from New York at the usual time only there won't be any money in that car and the men will be armed."

MacBeth merely raised an expressive eyebrow.

"And in the meantime," finished his assistant, his eyes snapping, "I will walk up the towpath with the money in my pocket and deliver it to Ray Browne on time."

MacBeth whistled and stared at him. "I don't want to expose—"

"You will not be exposing any of your men," Sir George said hastily. "I wouldn't for a moment propose that. It would be well worth the expense of the armored car, sir, if we notified the state police and they caught some of the rascals."

"But you? It is of you I was thinking."

The younger man laughed. "Who would believe that 'Beauty' Sandison was doing anything but strolling along to meet a girl. Or if they met me higher up the river, I am, of course, indulging in the British passion for walking."

"The river road or the towpath?"

"The towpath, of course."

"That has long lonely stretches."

"Yes, but they can't be traveled by motor. Their motor would have to be left on the road."

MacBeth looked at him jealously. "It's what I would like to do myself. But, thinking of Aggy—I hesitate to allow you to—"

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hussey and daughter, Mary Louise, of Morris Heights, spent Sunday at the home of Mr. Hussey's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Hussey, of Dorranee street.

RELIEF FROM CURSE OF CONSTIPATION

A Battle Creek physician says, "Constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause."

But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rexall Orderlies has been discovered. This tablet attracts water from the system into the lazy, dry, evacuating bowel called the colon. The water loosens the dry food waste and causes a gentle, thorough, natural movement without forming a habit or ever increasing the dose.

Stop suffering from constipation. Chew a Rexall Orderlie at night. Next day bright. Get 24 for 25c today at the nearest Rexall Drug Store. Charles I. Bowen.—(Adv.)

Lady Doyle Awaits More Details from Great Beyond

Weary From Strenuous Earthlife, Belief Is That Noted Author Will Communicate More Fully as he Familiarizes Himself With New Life and Psychic Conditions.

THE VACANT CHAIR

LADY CONAN DOYLE

THE LATE SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE AND FAMILY

LONDON, Oct. 16.—Spiritualism is responsible for the very small estate left by the late Sir Arthur Conan Doyle. With neglected orders from magazine publishers for stories—stories for which he could practically name his own price—piled up on his desk, he devoted himself entirely to propaganda for the cause in which he so vitally believed.

Conan Doyle in the latter years of his life practically gave himself over to spiritualism. He visited mediums all over the world, he read constantly works dealing with that subject, he attended seances and tests all over Europe, frequently undertaking an arduous journey just to attend one seance or interview a medium. He read, talked and lectured on spiritualism in the Autumn of his life and passed away with the firm conviction that he would be able to communicate with his family through some of the mediums in which he so believed.

Upholds Noted Author
Lady Conan Doyle is firmly convinced that the great creator of the immortal Sherlock Holmes was right to devote his life to the cause of spiritualism to the detriment of the literary work by which he has amassed so large a fortune. Although it is believed that his total estate will be less than $100,000, his widow declares that she and the children are proud and glad that he had devoted so many years of his life to the cause that was so dear to the late author. They feel that their acceptance of the conditions that so diminished their income is a contribution to spiritualism that must be of far-reaching effect, Lady Doyle is herself carrying on the enormous correspondence from spiritualists from all over the United States that has not decreased with the death of Sir Arthur.

Await Fuller Accounts

The absence of any but the routine messages that are familiar to anybody who has dabbled in spiritualism, does not dismay the Doyle family. Lady Conan Doyle declares that she has received several messages from her distinguished husband whom, she says is very weary from his strenuous earth life and in great need of a holiday. She and her friends are convinced that there will be a more detailed account from the great author when he has had the opportunity to familiarize himself with his new life and with psychic conditions.

Since the monster spiritualistic meeting at the Albert Hall, a meeting that was in the nature of a memorial service to Conan Doyle, mediums all over Great Britain have been bombarding Lady Conan Doyle with messages purported to have been received from Doyle. Most of the messages have been rejected by her, but there are a few that she says are authentic as they include details familiar only to the family.

Increased Demand for Works

The study and other rooms used by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle in his beautiful country home have been left untouched and are shown to visitors and sympathizers who call to chat with his widow and children. The desk at which the famous author created so many of his great works, and from which he conducted so much of his correspondence in connection with his spiritualistic work, both are left just as when he last used them. There is no sign of mourning in the well-ordered home. Lady Conan Doyle and her children firmly believe that Sir Arthur will communicate fully with them eventually and that, should the occasion present itself, they will be able to get in touch with him. The family promises that when the dead author does have a message for the world that will be presented as soon as they have definite proof that the communication is from him. In the meantime, book shops report increased sales in "Sherlock Holmes" and other of Conan Doyle's books.

AROUND THE WORLD TODAY

NEW YORK, Oct. 16—Charges were threatened today against Charles V. Bob, missing New York financier, and his business associate, Frederick C. Russell, by Watson Washburn, assistant Attorney General in charge of the State Bureau of Securities. Washburn claimed he had evidence on which he would base his charges.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Oct. 16—Continued search for a man said to answer the description of Judge Joseph Force Crater, missing New York jurist, today has failed to reveal any clue to his whereabouts. Although a passenger reported to resemble the missing Judge Crater alighted from the Southern Pacific Golden State Limited yesterday, a careful check of hotels, bus stations and railroad ticket offices failed to disclose any trace of the passenger. Trainmen who saw the passenger were to be interrogated further today.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16—The $25,000 check for their New York-Paris-Dallas flight will be awarded today to Captain Diemond Coste and Maurice Bellonte at a luncheon of the Advertising Club. The check will be presented by the donor of the prize, Colonel William E. Easterwood, of Dallas. The French flyers will be the dinner guests of the Foch Memorial dinner committee this evening and will sail for France tomorrow evening aboard the French liner France. A program honoring the flyers on board the liner will be broadcast over a nation-wide hookup.

GREENFIELD, Mo., Oct. 16—The kidnapper of Mrs. Alma Wilson McKinley, 24-year-old heiress, today was believed to have eluded a large posse of armed farmers who reported last night they had the gunman surrounded in a dense woods. Possemen requested help last night when they reported that the gunman was surrounded near Stockton, Mo. Search of the wooded land failed to reveal any trace of the man who freed Mrs. McKinley, an expectant mother, after holding her captive for 21 hours. Heavy rainfall during the night apparently obliterated the man's trail and bloodhounds were sent back to Springfield.

WICHITA, Kan., Oct. 16—Repairs to her plane's propeller, damaged when the ship nosed over in landing, today were expected to delay the transcontinental flight of Miss Laura Ingalls, St. Louis aviatrix seeking a west to east coast-to-coast record.

Hulmeville Hunter and Guide Trapped at Night on Mountain morning was the pleased look on the faces of our party, and also we were glad to notice that breakfast was just ready to serve, with hot cakes and tenderloin of the mountain sheep.

What a treat after that night!

We spent the morning of the 11th getting dried out from the night's rain; and in the afternoon Indian Johnnie and I started out for caribou.

But when we got down to the valley some two hours from camp, Johnnie, who was always looking for big game, looked way up the mountain side and said: "Five goats." And sure enough, there were five white spots so far up and away that they looked like five white snow balls on a flat ledge of rocks. So we climbed for the mountain goats, and some climb it was! Up steep slopes of loose shale we went, which I could only make by removing the shells from my rifle, and using the rifle as a staff, digging the forked shoulder rest into the shale to save a swift descent, or keep me from slipping back. Indian Johnnie had a staff, as well as spiked soles. We finally reached a rocky ledge which still required much arduous toil where the rocks were almost perpendicular with here and there a narrow ledge to step on. Had I once looked back and down I could never have made the grade. It was only the thought of the game above that carried me on. If any one who has never tried it, thinks its play to stalk a mountain sheep or goat, let him try it. Every so often you have to stop to get your wind, and your heart pounds like a trip hammer, and when you finally sight the game your nerves are in no condition for a true shot. We soon reached a ledge which proved to be as close as we could get to the goats. I peeked over the top and saw the five 300 yards away. Indian Johnnie, as always, stepped back out of sight, now that we were within rifle range. As my head and cap came up over the top of the rocks the five goats all came to their feet, ready to go. I picked out what I thought was the largest "Billy," and after I shot his performance puzzled me. He neither went down nor did he move up the mountain side with the other four. He just stood still, looking back, Johnnie told me to give him another, and the thought of how I had once lost a nice buck deer after knocking him down by not giving him another shot, came to my mind. So I gave the goat another one that turned him around, and then a third that floored him. By this time the other four goats were far up the mountain. While I was only entitled to one goat I took a try for one of my friends. It was a long shot now. Twice my rifle would not perform, grit probably having gotten into the works as I dug the gun into the shale. I had to throw out two good shells before the rifle came back to normal, and only got two or three more shots at the retreating quartet. When we went to examine Mr. Billy we found all three had hit; the first shot had been low and taken off his two front knee caps, this being what anchored him to receive the next two that went through his body. He was a very good trophy, fleecy white. Johnnie soon had him skinned out, head and hide. There is a peculiar fact about the mountain goat and sheep, as compared to the domestic ones. The domestic sheep have wool, and the mountain sheep have hair, and while the domestic goats have hair, the mountain goats have wool. When we reached camp with our trophy we found we were not ahead of Dr. Vansant, for he soon arrived with a goat just as good.

Mr. Reed and the big Canadian guide took two saddle horses and one pack horse on Friday, the 12th, and left our permanent camp with a fly tent and provisions for a two days' trip for as Reed had brought in the first sheep and first goat; myself the first bull moose, and Dr. Vansant the first caribou. And the first heads in each instance were the largest and best of their respective kinds secured in the hunt. This made the three of us about equally favored in drawing first blood.

And the reason is that "extra" merit is built into the three great "Standard" products that run your automobile better.

- (1) ESSO—containing Ethyl—knockless... the finest motor fuel ever made—gives outstanding performance in all respects. It costs more to make, yet Esso sells at only a 3-cent premium per gallon.
- (2) "STANDARD" GASOLINE—is the equal of most premium fuels in starting and many other qualities. Yet it sells at no advance in price over ordinary gasolines.
- (3) "STANDARD" MOTOR OIL—the oilier oil.

BRISTOL HIGH XI MEETS DOYLESTOWN TOMORROW

By Leon Schiffer

The bitter rivalry which has existed between the Bristol and Doylestown eleven for seven years will again be revived when Bristol meets Doylestown, for the third consecutive time, on Doylestown's gridiron, Friday.

Fearing that his men would go stale, Coach Townsend and his reliable assistants sent the Bristol high varsity squad through a light and thorough practice yesterday, stressing forward passing and punting, besides handling out several new plays, designed especially to receive the fast moving Doylestown secondary defense.

As a result of minor injuries sustained in the Langhorne game, many of the varsity squad will be on the sidelines for the next few days.

However, the Cardinal and Gray mentor feels confident that his charges will give a good account of themselves when they enter into the fray with Doylestown.

The former West Chester end on being interviewed said: "There is no particular reason why we should feel over-confident on account of the easy victories over Newtown and Langhorne, however, we shall endeavor to open up our 'bag of tricks' against Doylestown's strong defensive team."

As yet, Coach Townsend is undecided on what the starting line-up will be, but indications point towards the following: Ends, Dougherty and Esposito; tackles, Collins and Britton; guards, Neindorff and Wright; center, Alta; quarterback, Pico; halfbacks, Gaffney and Leighton; fullback, Borslice.

SCOTTS MEET

On Monday Troop No. 2, Boy Scouts, held their weekly meeting. The investment service was postponed until next week. The smallest number since the close of camp was in attendance. Mr. Neill told the boys that good times are in store for the future. One of these is attendance at the football game between Princeton and Lehigh at Princeton. On November 7th the district games will be held.

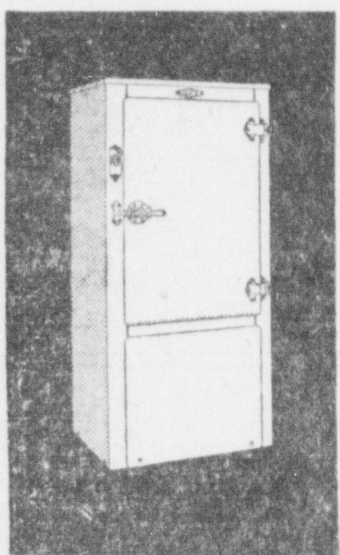

Miss Mary Green, of Philadelphia, was an overnight guest on Monday, of Miss Helen McHugh.

DIRT TRACK SPEED KING TO WED ON SPEEDWAY

Herman Werner Schurch, 27, of Hollywood, Cal., will be married on the Langhorne Speedway race track on Saturday afternoon, just before the 100-mile grind, the climax to a three-week courtship.

Schurch has had his headquarters in Trenton this summer and keeps his racing car there.

The bride is to be Miss Dorothy Lila Turner, 22, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Turner, prominent residents of Mattituck, Long Island.

The best man is to be Billy Winni, and the bridesmaid Miss Teddy Price, New York City.

The couple secured a marriage license at the Bucks County Court House in Doylestown, Pa., last Wednesday afternoon. The license was issued by Deputy Clerk Jacob Shelly.

Ralph A. Hankinson, veteran promoter of automobile races, who has the Langhorne and Woodbridge tracks, yesterday prevented an elopement and persuaded Schurch and his bride to wait until Saturday and allow the thousands of followers of the dirt track monarch an opportunity to be present at the first wedding ever performed on a race track.

Schurch will drive a Miller No. 12, the same car in which he piloted into second place on July 4 at Langhorne when Deacon Litz appealed to him to act as second driver after Deacon's injured wrist started to give him trouble. Since this announcement of the car which Schurch will drive he is a favorite over both Frame and Cummings to win.

The marriage will be celebrated before the race in the presence of a brilliant array of officials and co-pilots after which Schurch will step into his racing car and go out to win. The bride comes from a well-to-do New York family. She is in seclusion after the delayed ceremony. She is a blonde, pretty 22, and met Herman three weeks ago after one of his brilliant dirt track victories. It was a case of love at first sight.

class of 1930, is attending Drexel Institute at Philadelphia.

At a recent election of the student council of Bensalem student body the following officers were elected: President, Axel Kienborg; secretary, Viola Mae Haldeman; treasurer, Joseph Copestake. This array of officers should carry Bensalem to another year of glorious success.

Miss Snyder, of the science department of the high school, may be seen riding around in a Chevrolet coupe.

Miss Emilie Schroeder has returned from her recent illness to take her post as history teacher and librarian.

Yardley will be the opponents on the field for Bensalem to meet when the whistles blow to start the next gridiron contest on the B. T. H. S. schedule.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred McLaughlin and family, of Pond street; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Vosburg, of Trevoze, Dr. and Mrs. Harold C. Davis and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Enslin, of Trenton, N. J., were guests during the week-end of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Boehrer, of Newportville.

WEST BRISTOL

Axel Nelson is enjoying a two weeks' furlough from his duties on the oil tanker on which he is stationed, and is visiting at his home here.

Sunday guests of Mrs. R. Foster, of Seventh and Steel avenues, were Mr. and Mrs. Harry McKee, and Mr. and Mrs. George Kimble, of Philadelphia.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Mehler, and Mr. and Mrs. William Adams, and Joseph Bradley, paid a visit on Sunday to Mrs. Beresford, Seventh and Steele avenues.

The place of residence of Mr. and Mrs. William Spikes has been changed from Steel avenue to Philadelphia.

The Sunday evening service at the Newport Road Community Chapel was thoroughly enjoyed by the large group attending. The Harvest Home service was well arranged and a success. Enough donations of canned goods were received to fill four baskets. The edifice was attractive in decorations of corn stalks. Appreciation is expressed to all who donated fruits and vegetables.

A baby girl has arrived at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Gantt. The little one has been named Amilda Lorraine Gantt.

Elmer Morrow is now at the home of his brother, Serrill Morrow, in Fox Chase, and is under the care of a physician.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Veit entertained a number of relatives at their West Bristol home on Sunday.

Relatives were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Kerest at their Newport Road home on Sunday last.

Following a severe cold A. W. Mertz, Newport Road, is much improved.

Extensive work is being done at the rear of the house of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Mertz, where a kitchen and bathroom are being outfitted.
